ASIA HAS NEW PLACE ON MAP

Aspires to New Hope—Broken Power of Turkey Over Christian Peoples.

(By William T. Ellis.) President Wilson and Lloyd George have given new hope to aspiring Asia. In their statement of peace terms we find the power of Turkey over Christian peoples broken, the independence of Armenia, Palestine, Arabia, Assyria and Mesopotamia guaranteed, and protection promised to weak China and Persia. This tremendous change in the world's map is full of religious significance. It means the passing of intol-erance and the sway of Islam's scim-itar. It means the new concentration of worldwide Christian thought upon the region which gave the religions of revelation to mankind. It means a free path for research in archaeology. In a word, it means that the neth of In a word, it means that the path of the cross is cleared anew in the land

That Asia is awake is known to everybody who is not himself asleep with respect to the big world. This awakening is one of the big factors in the life of today. Merchant, financier, statesman and diplomatist are all interested in it. Forces are astir in the life of today which portend changes in ancient east which portend changes in the maps of the world and bid fair to profoundly alter the present conditions of society. Deepest of all the new movements is that which affects the religious faith of the orient.

What a nation believes with respect to religion is of far more significance than what it buys and sells.

Broadly speaking, Asia is in a state of religious unrest. It is avowedly dis-satisfied with the present conditions of the ancient faiths. By the testimony of their own leaders, the educated youth of the Asiatic nations are slipping rapidly away from the faiths of their fathers into indifference and agnosticism. Only Christianity and Islamism, the two monotheistic faiths, show any real vitality. A great num-ber of scholarly observers unite in declaring without reservation that one of these two religions will dominate Asia within a comparatively short America is discovering Asia. Until recently the continent which is the mother of civilization had retreated into the background of men's thinking Its people had ceased to be present factors in the problems of life; a deadness of self-complacency and self-isolation had fallen upon it as a pall. isolation had fallen upon it as a pall. Now, almost of a sudden within the present generation Asia has been aroused. And with equal suddenness, America has been awakened to some degree of understanding of the phenomenon of the revivified Orient. It is nothing less than a discovery of the east by the west; and the effect upon the future of the western world will be quite comparable to the effect upon Europe of the discovery of America Europe of the discovery of America by Columbus.

Whenever you think of Asia, think of potency. The largest of the five continents has the smallest name, but the greatest potency—a potency of people, of natural resources, of imagination, of industry and of thrift. The more one muses upon the meaning of Asia awake the more impressed his imagination becomes.

The yeast of the new life that is stirring Asia, has many component parts. Trade is one. The newspaper is another. Travel is another. The mechanical appliances of civilization are another. The day's world-spirit is another. But the most noticeable part of the leaven that is now at work in the Orient is western education.

All Chistiandom knows that the Christian church in Korea is an ex-ample to the western churches in evangelistic zeal, in Bible study, in praye and in the endurance of persecution. Now that these Christians are called upon to suffer sore trial at the hand of Japan, they should be made to feel that their brethren in all the world are in a fellowip of prayer and sympathy

Jesus was born in Asia; and some day Asia is to be born again to Christ.

Asia, it must never be forgotten, is Asia, it must never be forgotten, is the land of the Saviour's birth. If one continent means more to Him than any other, then it is surely the place of His own nativity, the land where He spent His early life, and beyond whose borders He never wandered, after His parents had brought him up from Egypt, that is the object of his especial solicitude. The faith which Christendom once got from Asia it today owes to Asia.

THUNDER OF GUNS SILENCES STILL, SMALL VOICES OF THE DAY

President Wilson Has Made Clear That War Is Being Fought for Long-Ensuing and Abiding Goals.

(By William T. Ellis.) the news from the front, but we miss the tides. Things obscure trends. And after all, as President Wilson has made clear even to the most heedless, this war is being fought for cer-tain long ensuing and abiding goals which reside in that realm of the spirit. Our armies are fighting for the coming of that kingdom of righteousness on all the earth of which Jesus

So it is timely that the Sunday schools of North America should de-vote a lesson to the parables of the growth of the Kingdom of heaven.

Seeds That Split Stones. A seed fell into a crevice in a rock, where dust and soil had gathered. A tiny green shoot soon appeared. This grew into a tree; and, lo, such was grew into a tree; and, lo, such was the power of the living thing, that the mighty rock was sundered. There are seeds of new ideas sprouting in our time in the cracked rocks of an-cient customs and conservatism. Because the seeds seem little, foolish men have disregarded them. If there is any lesson in the day's war news, or in this old story of the mustard seed, as told by Jesus, it is that what is despised today may be mighty to-

has been at no pains to guide the shaping forces of life. Such potent agencies as the Sunday school and the Young People's society have had to come to their greatness of power before ever the organized churches realized their potentialities. Who among all the leaders of Christendom would think it the business of the church to encourage choice young men to go into journalism, not for purposes of religious propaganda, but for purposes of human service and kingdon ministry? So, too, young men and young women become teachers of the young without ever an inspiring or guiding word from their religious leaders. Who gives heed to the men who draw the pictures of the periodi-cal press, which so affect the thinking of the masses? Has any ecclesiastical assembly ever devoted five minutes to a consideration of the power of the song writer, or even of the men who determine the character of a nation's humor? I know a little woman who writes hundreds of Sunday school songs, sung by the very little children—songs that make an abidin impression upon the plastic mind of youth; I doubt, though, if she has ever had a word of praise or encouragement or suggestion from any Chris-tian leader of our time. The truth is the churches are culpably derelled in underrating and ignoring the forces which fix the ideals of our day, seeds and saplings that are to come the trees of tomorrow might be better for a little tending. Patience With the Seed. All the great forces grow silently. There is less power in a noisy crowd than there is in the retired thinker in his study. The philosopher, the inventor, the scientist, working apart from man, unheeded and unappraised by even his nearest neighbors, may be setting into motion forces which will profoundly affect the life of to-morrow. All about us the mustard seed parable is being enacted. Let us n and not despise the day of small things.

Nobody has such faith as the farmer. He spends winter, spring, and most of summer in preparing for his by the Lutheran church in America harvest. With seed in the ground, he to raise $750,000 for the welfare of simply waits, working, it is true, while its soldiers and sailors has been most he waits. The seed cannot be hur-ried if it is to bring forth good fruit. Nevertheless, the farmer is an incur-able optimist. He expects a harvest, although he recognizes that it takes miracle of nature to produce it

In religion, too, something of the same patience with the seed is needed. The Christian church has undertaken to raise a world-wide harvest. As yet, the seed is only germinating in the ground in many places. Thus, in In-dia, there has been a wonderful sow-ing of Christian truth, but the full harvest is not yet. All over that won-derful land an observer may see the mustard seed of truth sprouting, and e has faith that the day is to come when that great tree, whose leaves shall be for the healing of the nations, will result. But patience is

Here is an article of every Chriscreed that should permeate all his thinking; whether we watch it or not, whether we understand it or not, the kingdom of heaven is growing and coming. In ways beyond our ken, and by agencies that are past human grasp, that kingdom, which means man's weal as well as God's glory, is steadily rising toward its fulness of dominion.

Some Kingdom Blunders. There are three classes of people who especially need the teaching of this parable of the mustard seed, for they are blundering in the matter of he kingdom's coming. First, there is the kingdom-to-come-in-a-hurry crowd. They are sure that the millennium will dawn tomorrow. They see in every express train and cloud-piercing airship a fulfillment of the prophecy that men shall run to and fro over the earth. n.m. German morning service at 2:30 Pew of these are gifted with any o'clock. English Lenten service at 2:30 Pistorical sense, and they are ignorant of the fact that their same type of character got just as excited over the introduction of the stage coach. In the wireless telegraph and in the discovery of the North pole they see signs of the swift coming of the kingdom. They have no patience: they cannot und stand any other time than the present day: their sense of proportion is lacking. The present world war is to them an evidence that the fullness of all times has come. These need to remember the parable of the mustard seed. The kingdom's coming is a growth. The seed that germinated so wonderfully in the first centuries has been steadily doing its work, but not yet is its growth accomplished.

In the second place there is the heedless crowd who are really not watching for the kingdom's coming. They see no growth and are not per-turbed by any apparent declension. To them religion is an unreal sort of fairy realm to be taken on somebody's say so. They are not among those who are watching. To might come anew the Master's "Can ye not discern the signs of the Signs of Promise.

Why did Jesus tell this story, any-how? What was the first purpose of the parable? Was it not to hearten this friends, who would have many reasons for discouragement, with no conviction that the kingdom, to which they had given their lives, was a con-quering kingdom. At the base of the parable is a hote of assurance. The kingdom of heaven is coming. Let us get that conviction into the groundwork of all our thinking, and we see its fulfillment on every hand. so looks at life in its relationships and with a wide horizon, k owing somewhat of other centuries than his own, will observe signs of promise everywhere.

Five years ago it would have been thought incredible that the world's foremost statesmen would be chart-ing the cruise of civilization by the very ideals of Jesus. Now the whole world is coming to accept as a truism the proposition that all men's good,

While we study the parable of the in obedience to the righteous laws of insignificant little seed that became a great plant, let us give a glance in passing to the amazing folly of organized Christianity, which has ever shown itself strangely blind to the tendencies of its own times, and which the custodian of the kingdom, is called upon to subordinate all things tendencies of its own times, and which tivities and ambitions-wherever ceasary to the coming of that new or-der of God which all Christians hold in supreme honor and affection.

MAJ. STULL WILL PREACH AT THIRD PRESBYTERIAN

Probably Popular Chaplain's Last Appearance in a Chattanooga Pulpit.

Maj. Stull, chaplain of the Sixth infantry, stationed at Camp Forrest, will preach at the 11 o'clock services Sunday morning at the Third Presbyterian church. Maj. Stull has preached at this church on several occasions and has made a most favor-able impression on the congregation of that church. Last Sunday the major stated that this Sunday would probably be the last time he would have an opportunity to preach Chattanooga.

This left the impression that the major's regiment is soon to be called major's regiment. A general major's regiment is soon to be called away from Camp Forrest. A general invitation has been extended for all to hear the major Sunday. He is one of the most active of chaplains and has done a good work since coming to Chattanooga and he will, no doubt, be heard Sunday by a large congressation. gatton.
